HYDROPHOBIA

Only One of the Four Rabbits Inoculated Survived.

ONE DIED IN CONVULSIONS.

The Survivor Was Inoculated in the Ear and is Hale and Hearty-Period of Danger Past.

On the 17th of December, Dr. Brooks, assisted by Dr. Turner in the presence of representatives of the press here inoculated four rabbits, all that were then available, with a part of the spinal cord of the dog that bit a number of people here.

The spinal column, as stated at the time, was emulsed in glycerine chemically pure and the emulsion used in the inoculation. Three of the rabbits were inoculated over the cervical vertebrae just in front of the shoulders by clipping the skin with an aseptic instrument. The other rabbit was inoculated by injecting the emulsion hypodermically in the ear. A very fine needle was used and only a small quantity of the emulsion could be injected.

The three rabbits inoculated by the cervico-spinal process all died. One died of blood-poisoning and one of pneumonia as noted some days ago. The other died on the fifth of January or on the eighteenth day after inoculation. The maximum period within which a rabbit inoculated will have hydrophobia is twenty days. This is the twenty-first day and the remaining rabbit is perfectly healthy and eats greedily and it may be assumed that it will not die.

The last rabbit to die expired in convulsions, as shown by the position of its body. Dr. Brooks had been watching the rabbits closely. On the morning of the 5th he fed the two survivors and noticed that one was drooping and would eat only when the food was placed directly before it. The other ate heartily. He was called away and returning about 5 o'clock p. m., went to see the rabbits. He found the one making its last gasp. The head was drawn back nearly to the rump, the sual position in case of convulsions Our cooking speaks for itself. Dr. Brooks did not see enough of the death struggles to determine the nature of the convulsions. That it did die with convulsions, there is no room

The only disease other than hydrophobia that could account for the appearance of the dead rabbit is tetanus. But the maximum period for death by tetanus is eight days and the usual period is twenty-four hours, while as noted the rabbit died on the eighteenth

It is to be regretted of course that the experiment could not settle the question beyond doubt but it is one of those instances, common enough in scientific experimentation, where hard and fast conclusions can not be safely drawn. The probabilities as shown by the experiment are on the side of the dog's having hydrophobia. Beyond that it would be unsafe to go.

FROM THE TWIN-CITY.

Action of Salem Commissioners Wild Pumor

Winston, N. C., Jan. 8-The Salem commissioners, at their meeting last night, advanced an idea which may prove of much value to the municipal poards of other towns and cities in the state. The Eagle Hose Co. of that city asked to be relieved from the payment of poll tax upon the ground that they were doing volutary service for the city. The solons refused the petition, assigning as a reason that the laws of the state prohibited any interference as to poll tax.

The Winston aldermen recently violated the law in this respect and it is brobable many other towns have inadvertently done likewise.

All lawyers here say the Salem com-nissioners are right. Wild rumors are circulated here that Dr. Wheeler has been appointed postmaster for Winston and Henry Shore for Salem. There is absolutely no foundation for these rumors, the object of the originators being supposed to be a test by the Wheeler faction of public opinion on the question as to his being acceptable in case there should be a chance for him to slip in.

MAJOR BITTINGER BLACKBALLED. Our Consul-General in Canada Turner Down by a Montreal Club.

Montreal, Jan. 6.-A sensation was caused here tonight by the news that Major John L. Bittinger, the United States Consul-General for Canada, had been blackballed for membership in the St. James Club, Montreal's swell social organization. Major Bittinger was appointed Consul-General at Montreal a few months ago by President McKinley. When his nomination was made it was strongly opposed on the ground that Major Bittinger, while internal revenue gauger for the Sixth district of Missouri, had conspired to defrand the United States; that he had pleaded guilty to the charge and had been sentenced to two years' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000. The opposition came to nothing, as Major Bittinger's appointment was confirmed. When he came to Canada circulars vere sent to the leading newspapers and to prominent citizens of Montreal giving the details of the incident in failed. Major Bittinger's career, and they created an unfavorable impression. Major Bittinger's name was presented some weeks ago for membership in the St. James Club, and the vote was taken tonight. When the ballot was counted it was found that a large numper of blackballs had been placed in the box and the application was rejected. The incident is likely to lead to a great deal of ill feeling.

What a pity that a senatorship can not be cut up into as many pieces as

It is not stated whether actor Ratcliffe beat his first wife or whether the chastisement came the other way around.

His Excellency's departure for Washington was very quiet but his return was even less calculated to attract the public gaze.

Mr. James J. Corbett's vociferous anxiety to get another chance at Mr. Robert Fitzsimmons suggests that his ambition and his solar plexus must be at variance.

The Governor provided himself with a new white hat while in . Washington. It is understood that after his interview with the President his old hat was several sizes too large.

The Rev. F. S. Bacon, pastor of the Tabernacle in Manchester, N. H., has requested a 10 per cent cut down in his salary to conform to the cut down in the mills.-Boston Globe.

The year opens with a quiet confidence pervading nearly all branches of business .- Bradstreet's.

Are we to understand that the illustrious pryor into other people's affairs, the nice balancer of other people's accounts includes southern farming and New England cotton milling among those industries pervaded by a "quiet confidence?" Or do they save themselves through the "nearly?" Dun's and Bradstreet's are slowly forging up to the weather bureau as the most multifarious and far-reaching of

The rantankerous attack of the politicians upon the civil service and the merit system is a distinct step backward in American politics. The worst of it is that judging from present indications the attack is likely to be successful. Cool judgment, common sense and respectability so far as they have invaded politics at all have upheld the civil service method of making appointments. To return now to the old time method of kicking out competents and putting in incompetents is like a sober man going on a drunken debaunch.

Contrast last New Year's with this New Year's: Empty dinner pails against full dinner pails; two or three days a week employment against six days a week; thousands of unemployed men against men working at regular wages. Does it look as though the change from Democratic to Republican policy had done nothing towards returning prosperity to the country?-Winston Republican.

The only trouble with this most beautiful contrast is that the facts on which it is based take their origin from the hectic imagination of the Republican and not from existing conditions. The Republican in its role of dinner pail inspector probably came along last year just after dinner instead of before. The Republican should not have confined its examination to the pail.

The fact that the galleries came own with uproarous applause after each attack upon the civil service in Congress emphasizes the fact that Washington is unusually full of office seekers just now.

There are two papers, and but two o far as we are able to learn, that defended Stanly and her people in the storm of words which has been driven at her; one of these papers is The Concord Times and the other is The Evening Journal. We have been like two lone oaks when the winds howled, the lightnings flashed, and the thunders crashed and when all around us was wrecked by the fusilade of a merciless

But the storm has subsided. We stand on the everlasting rock of Justice, and see the clouds, one by one, wiped away; and Stanly emerges from the clearing smoke of her battle for Right and advances to clasp hands with her only unwavering friends, who with faith in her manhood, faith in her future, did not desert her, nor attempt to "crucify her on a cross of gold."-

Hip, hip, hurrah! Let all the cymbals crash and the tom-toms rumble! Stick a match to the business end of a cannon cracker! Let Richmond Pearson turn green of envy! "On, Stanly, on!" Let the choicest lightnings ziz-zag! The clouds have been "wiped away."

SATURDAY'S LITERARY CHAT.

[All books and magazines mentioned below may be had at Wharton's book store.]

The current Cosmopolitan has much that is readable and some features that promise well. "Stephen Girard and His College," by James M. Beck, should do something toward correcting the almost universally false impression of that humane and philanthropic man. Few men have deserved so much at the hands of posterity and have received so little. "Gloria Mundi," by Harold Frederic, a serial story, will atttract attention before the year is out if it fulfills its promise. It is of that fine, clean work in character fiction that Hardy, Stevenson and James have familiar to English readers. It gives promise of drawing deeper water than most of the current serials. The "History of Our Late War with Spain" continues, though for some unaccountable reason the author has forgotten to have Spain do any of the fighing and has left that pleasant task to England and Germany. A small oversight merely. There is a short sketch, "The - Dreams of the Gods," that ought to be by Olive Schreiner (and may be for no name appears) because it is utterly impossible to understand or conjecture at what the author is driving. It has all the sweet coherency of a dream in-

What ails Mr. Gordon? McClure's is chiefly notable because for the first time in his literary existence Mr. Cy. Warman takes his hand ers. off the throttle and quits "glancing along the line to see if all the lights are white" (we quote from a memory not greatly encouraged to retain the exact words) and describes his experiences at Karlsbad. We trust that Mr. Warman found the experience pleasant and profitable. We are less sanguine about Karlsbad. Mr. Warman having side tracked himself. Herbert E. Hamblen thunders by with the Experiences and Adventures of a Brakeman." Robert Barr contributes "A Long Ladder" and there is a new installment of "Rupert of Hentzau" a sequel to Hope's Prisoner of Zenda. Dana's Reminiscencies continue. The much-talked-of article on A. H. Hallam"" the hero of Tennyson's "In Memoriam," which Mr. Gladstone has written for The Youth's Companion, appears in the New Year's number of that periodical. "It is the simple truth," says Mr. Gladstone, "that Arthur Henry Hallam was a spirit so exceptional that everything with which fire sets, also pokers, shovels, etc., he was brought into relation during that we will close out very cheap. his shortened passage through this world came to be, through this contact, glorified by a touch of the ideal. Among his contemporaries at Eton, that queen of visible homes for the ideal schoolboy, he stood supreme among all his fellows; and the long life through which I have since wound my way, and which has brought me into contact with so many men of rich endowments, leaves him where he then stood, as to natural gifts, so far as my estimation is concerned."

Stanley J. Weyman's new romance 'The Castle Inn," which begins its se rial course in the current Munsey's, is prefaced by this publisher's announcement: "Mr. Weyman, whose 'Gentleman of France' created a new school of historical romance, has found in the BUY THE STANDARD ROTARY, the rapid, silent sewing machine. England of George III a field for a tf.

story that is no less strong in action and much stronger in its treatment of the human drama of character and emotion, than his tales of French history." The first "fact" will be a surprise to the shade of the elder Dumas. The early chapters give to us plenty of romance and mystery of eighteenth century flavor, properly introduced by an unctuously sketched tavern see The story begins in the early spring of the year 1767 on the Oxford road. The hero is evidently to be Sir George Sloane, who makes his debut in a postchaise. He is a young gentleman who owns Lord Chatham for a patron, but who has at 26 tired of the aimless follies London.

Mackenzie Bell's biographical and critical study of Christina Rossetti is at last on the London bookstalls, this authorized life of the poetess-being based largely on information and letters supplied by her relatives.

TELEPHONE RATES CUT.

The Railroad Commission Makes

Col. Olds writes from Raleigh to the Charlotte Observer: Though the new members of the railroad commission said yesterday that only minor matters regarding overcharges would be taken up, and so told their associate, Dr. Abbott, yet this afternoon they made a sweeping reduction of yearly telephone rates of rental by ordering the following in effect on and after February 1: Business telephones, special wire, $30; two and three party wires each, $24; four and five party wires each, $18 esidence telephones, special wire, $18; two and three party wires each $16; four and five party wires each, $14.

These rates do not apply to service ontside the corporate limits of any city or town. Commissioner Abbott says he believes the question of reduction of railroad passenger rates will be taken up at a very early date, possibly tomorrow.

A nine or ten year old child of Charlotte Stewart, colored, living near the Battle Ground, was accidentally burned to death yesterday, we are informed.

Ten couples of young people from the city attended a dance last night at the residence of Mr. D. C. Stewart, about ten miles east of here in the

Dr. Charles D. McIver, who has been sick for a few days, came up town this afternoon to attend the trial of the matter of locating a barn at the State Normal and Industrial College. This is the case, it will be remembered, in which L. M. Stewart secured a restraining order some time ago.

Quite an enjoyable evening was spent at Mr. and Mrs. Jas. H. West's residence on Cedar street. A number of young people were present, who greatly enjoyed the many kindnesses of their host and hostess. The refreshments which were served at half-past nine were a feature of the evening de-Peaches, serving of special praise. The guests began leaving at eleven, but it was Pickled Beef. Nothing twelve o'clock before the last had said good night.

An Enjoyable Evening.

The unnamable social function or masquerade at Dr. Crawford's on last evening, was attended by quite a large number of lassies and laddies.

The program of the evening was well carried out. It consisted of an old blue back spelling bee, in which all joined while masked. After this the masks were removed and theguests elegant repast awaited them. After doing full justice to this, recitations, music, etc., were in order and the se-

The young ladies certainly deserve Cakes, Pies, Bread and praise for the most unique attires and the elegant way in which they entertained last evening.

HELD UP AND ROBBED.

Postoffice Thieves?

Chapel Hill, Jan. 8-A day or so ago N. C. Long, of this village, was held up and robbed by three men, two white and one colored, while on his his way home from Durham. The negro held the horse he was driving while the white men covered him with pistols and searched his pockets. They got five dollars and then told him he could go on his way. From the description given of the two men it is thought that they are same men who were in Chapel Hill the first of this week and the authorities here think they are members of the gang of postoffice thieves who have robbed several postoffices in this and adjoining states. So far they have made good their escape.

WEALTHY MAN SUICIDES.

He Was Well Known to a Number of People Here.

Simon Hernsheim, a wealthy cigar manufacturer, committed suicide in New Orleans on Wednesday by taking cyanide of potassium. Grief, resulting from the death of his wife several months ago, and other family troubles was the cause.

Mr. Hernsheim was connected with the A. H. Motley Co., of Reidsville, and visited this city on business with his attorney, R. R. King.

He was a man of fine personal appearance, pleasant manner and large estate. The cause assigned above is the only apparent reason for the unfortunate and rash act.

A Whist Party.

There was a very enjoyable whist party at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. T. Cameron Gales, on Gorrell street

Those present and participating were Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. N. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Fry, Mr. and Mrs. O. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Gayle, Mr. J. T. Melton; Misses Bernard DeButts, Sarah DeButts, Ballard, Gales of Raleigh, and Fry. Messrs. DeButts, McMackin, Bradley, Horry and Coleman. After whist refreshments were served.

Home Talent.

The Greensboro Dramatic Club will entertain those of our citizens who delight in the drama the beautiful play "A Scrap of Paper" at the Academy of Music on next Thursday night. The rehearsals are progressing finely and the play will be presented in firstclass style. Our people should give the Club a large audience as its work heretofore has been of a high order of merit and this play will be no exception to the rule. Reserved seats on sale at Gardner's Drug Store. Price 50 cents.

Rear End Collision.

The Chattanooga special over the Southern, due here at 8:50 was over three hours late today owing to a freight wreck between Statesville and Salisbury. One freight train had repaired to the dining room where an stopped and neglected to send out the flagman, when another freight, which was following crashed into the standing train demolishing the caboose and

> No one was seriously hurt, we are informed. The caboose and three freight cars caught fire and were burned up.

Painfully Burned.

This morning about nine o'clock Miss Minnie Gorrell, daughter of Mrs. Carrie Gorrell, was standing near the fire at her home on Ashe street when her clothing caught from the blaze and she was quite painfully burned. The flames were fortunately extinguished before they reached her face. Miss Gorrell is a charming and popular young lady and many friends sympathize with her in this painful accident, and wish for her a speedy recovery from the effects of the burn.

The Ryan Children.

The committee which has been preparing the Ryan children for the orphanage, wish to thank all those who have so generously aided them in their undertaking.

The response to their appeal has been so hearty and so general that the children are well provided with all necessary clothing and will leave for the Thompson Orphanage at Charlotte, on the early train Monday
